The Big Canvas The Big Canvas is a poetry and fiction website. Some of its posts are fiction, some are essays and reviews about great books (including poetry) and other posts are just ideas, poems, photos, and videos. The Big Canvas means the world to you and your artists. We invite you to make that world bigger and more beautiful than it was before.

Monthly Archives: April 2015 The cover of Book of Shadows is a map. In my head, it's a map of the world, with all the cities

I've ever lived in in bold letters. Each signified a life so vivid it feels as real as places I've actually visited. And even though I can't actually put my finger on any of those cities, I know they're real. But the real can be so ... fake. Throughout the book, we meet a cast of funny and odd characters. Some are familiar from the Haunt, and others are part of the larger of my stories. And although I can't make any of them real, they almost feel real. Except for Hayden. I know her backstory, where she grew up, what brought her to Haunt. But she's not real. I know that.

She's an amalgamation of both other characters and my own voice. For some reason, I associate Hayden with tiaras. Maybe because she's the only character of any importance wearing a tiara at the ceremony. When I was a kid, I only knew about three Haunts. The old boring one in L.A., Haunt A, and Haunt B, which I didn't even know existed. But I'd watch some show about it on TV—or read about it in some book. All I knew was that kids were kidnapped. Every time I read about it, there was a typical Haunt setting: a haunted house

[Release Date: 2/5/2014]The COAST DB website has the data from the individual county lists. By Derek Gee in Provo, Battle Creek & Muskegon Counties on March 30, 2010 at 7:41 am When it comes to the best work of Michigan's 250 chartered accounting and business organizations, we think the Small Business Association can claim the top spot. The SBA released its 2010 list of the most entrepreneurial organizations in the state on Wednesday. The acronym COAST is used to refer to member organizations of the Chartered Accounting Organization of the State of Michigan, the Michigan Association of Certified Public Accountants, the Michigan Real Estate Association, and the Michigan Realtors Association, which make up the state's most thriving and productive organizations. The SBA announced the rankings at its annual convention in Indianapolis on Wednesday. Other COAST DB organizations that made the top 250 are the Michigan Association for Entrepreneurship and Self-Employment, the Michigan Association of Women Business Owners, Michigan Competitive Corporation League, the Michigan Purchasing Consortium, Michigan Vocational Rehabilitation Commission, the Michigan Youth Basketball and Cheerleading Association and the Michigan Youth Soccer Association. SBA International President and CEO Harvey Schildt tells us that one of the most impressive things about the list is that any one of the groups can claim it as its own. "They are all specialties we feel are important to Michigan," Schildt said. "We wanted to recognize that they all contribute." All the information about the organizations can be found at The complete list of the top 250 most entrepreneurial organizations in the state is below. The complete ranking of the COAST DB is included. Inking ivy Ink vixen is a very interesting and attractive natural substance with an incredibly beautiful smell. The name of the ink
